

Vaughan launches multi-million suit against city hall design firm

February 17, 2012

It appears the honeymoon is over between the City of Vaughan and the world-renowned architect it commissioned to design the new city hall, The Citizen has learned. Vaughan politicians may have praised the building at its grand opening in September, but already by that time it had launched a multi-million lawsuit months before in May 2011 against architectural firm Kuwabara Payne McKenna Blumberg (KPMB) over what the city alleges are deficiencies.
