

Raj Anand contributes to Canada at 150: Building a Free and Democratic Society

October 16, 2017

WeirFoulds is pleased to announce that Raj Anand has contributed an essay to the LexisNexis one-of-a-kind publication, Canada at 150: Building a Free and Democratic Society.

Raj's essay is a personal account of his experience with the Quebec Secession Reference, a decision that confirmed lawyers' obligation to uphold the rights of minorities.

His essay is one of more than 50 curated essays on major political and historical developments in Canadian constitutional history.

The book offers an insightful, balanced look at Canada's constitutional past and present, highlighting our achievements while acknowledging persistent injustices.

It will be officially launched by LexisNext on October 18, 2017 and can be purchased now from the LexisNexis online store.
