Adam Varro is an Associate in WeirFoulds' Commercial Litigation Group, practising in the areas of aviation, media and defamation, and asset recovery litigation.

Adam's practice includes acting for air carriers in commercial and liability claims, defending Canadian media organizations in liability and defamation claims, and representing individuals and institutions in asset tracing and recovery matters. Adam brings a pragmatic approach to dispute resolution, tailoring litigation strategy to specific client needs to deliver excellent service.

Prior to joining WeirFoulds, Adam was a litigation associate at a full-service Toronto-based law firm, where his practice focused on automotive law, licencing and regulatory disputes. Adam has represented clients before the Superior Court of Justice, Divisional Court, Licence Appeal Tribunal, and Ontario Court of Justice, and assisted clients with licencing applications under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act and the Cannabis Licence Act.

In the broader legal community, Adam sits as a Director on the Board of the Fair Change Legal Clinic and regularly volunteers with Pro Bono Ontario's Free Legal Advice Hotline. In addition, Adam is the Board Chair of Adam House, a refugee resettlement organization.
