Claire Copland is an Associate in the Commercial Litigation Practice Group at WeirFoulds LLP.

Claire's practice focuses on trial and appellate advocacy. She represents businesses and individuals in complex commercial and contractual disputes, director and officer liability matters, fraud claims, shareholder disputes, real property litigation, employment disputes, negligence claims, and injunctions. She has appeared before the Ontario Superior Court of Justice on motions, applications, and trials, and has represented clients in appeals in the Ontario Divisional Court and the Court of Appeal for Ontario. She has also acted in private arbitrations.

During law school, Claire was a member of Osgoode's competitive negotiation team and a Dean's Fellow for first year public and constitutional law. She was also a mentor with the Osgoode Women's Network.

Before joining WeirFoulds, Claire articulated and was an associate at a regional Toronto-based law firm focused on business and public law.
